Maryland Legislation to Create a Reading & Dyslexia Handbook HB 718 & SB 575

Background

Maryland's 2017 Legislative Dyslexia Task Force Report includes a recommendation to create a Dyslexia Handbook because the Task Force found that administrators, educators, and parents would benefit from a resource on dyslexia that is electronically accessible to all (p. 52). The Recommendation says:

"This Handbook should reflect the neurobiological and operational definition of dyslexia provided in the dyslexia Technical Assistance Bulletin and mirrored in this document, and should include evidence-based practice guidelines for identification, assessment, and intervention, service delivery model(s), and progress monitoring strategies and tools. This is a legislative opportunity to establish and fund a Working Group or Dyslexia Advisory Committee to develop the handbook using the Best Practices document presented by the Task Force."

 The Maryland Ready to Read Act (2019, SB 734, Ch. 512), originally included language to create a Dyslexia Handbook. The recommendation to create a Dyslexia Handbook is an inexpensive means to provide supplemental information to Maryland's 25 districts so they have access to the best practices to identify and address dyslexia in Maryland.

Other State Reading/Dyslexia Handbooks

- 23 States have handbooks
- 14 were legislated while others were the result of a collaborative working group, task force and/or resolution by a Governor or State Board of Education. Fairfax County, VA created its own handbook.
